Starting of Southern Higher Technological Institute at Guindy.

The Southern Higher Technological Institute (now known as the Indian Institute of Technology, Madras) has already started functioning in a 612.71 acre site at Guindy with effect from 22nd July 1959. It has an initial intake of 120 students for the B. Tech. degree. The selection of candidates has been made on the basis of merit on a Statewise quota in proportion to the population of each State, coupled with the 'education index' (allotment of seats in a State being distributed among the different universities in that State).

Twenty per cent of the seats has been reserved for the members of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes and these seats have also been filled up on the basis of merit.

2. The courses that are being conducted for the present in the Institute are in Civil Engineering, Mechanical Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Chemical Engineering and Metallurgical Engineering leading to the B. Tech. degree.

3. The Institute will work on grants-in-aid received from the Government of India. The Government of West Germany will also be spending Rs. 180 lakhs on workshops and laboratory equipment.
